Pages waiting on a client decision

What is waiting on a decision

Page	What it is	Who decides
AC Installation	"Free Estimate" appears in the page title, the hero line and the closing paragraph. It is the brief's own wording, left as written. Many contractor markets restrict that phrase, so confirm it before launch.	Client confirms
AC Repair Experts	Mirror of the live ad landing page, kept byte for byte. Its menu button, Book Now and BBB badge are under 44px on a phone and the review attributions are 10px. Those come from the live theme, not from this build, and cannot be reached from our stylesheet.	Client, if they want the live page fixed
AC Replacement Experts	Mirror of the live ad landing page, kept byte for byte. Its menu button, Book Now and BBB badge are under 44px on a phone and the review attributions are 10px. Those come from the live theme, not from this build, and cannot be reached from our stylesheet.	Client, if they want the live page fixed
Blog	No publish dates and no author byline anywhere in this set. The content calendar lists all 13 posts as Scheduled to Post with no date, and no brief names an author. Also carries the spelling "recognise" in one card, which is the brief's own wording.	Client supplies dates and an author
Furnace Repair Experts	Mirror of the live ad landing page, kept byte for byte. Its menu button, Book Now and BBB badge are under 44px on a phone and the review attributions are 10px. Those come from the live theme, not from this build, and cannot be reached from our stylesheet.	Client, if they want the live page fixed
Furnace Repair	Carrier, Lennox, Rheem and Goodman show as logos. Trane and American Standard stay as names because the only marks available are the parent company (Trane Technologies) and the plumbing fixtures business, both of which would be the wrong logo. Bryant and York had no usable file. More important: a manufacturer logo normally signals authorized dealer status, and the copy only claims that Sunny services these brands.	Client confirms which brands they are a dealer for
Furnace Replacement Experts	Mirror of the live ad landing page, kept byte for byte. Its menu button, Book Now and BBB badge are under 44px on a phone and the review attributions are 10px. Those come from the live theme, not from this build, and cannot be reached from our stylesheet.	Client, if they want the live page fixed
Heating	The section headed "Heating Systems and Brands We Service" lists only system types (gas furnaces, electric furnaces, heat pumps, mini-splits) and names no brand at all. Either drop "and Brands" from the heading or carry the furnace page's brand list here.	Client decides which
Kearns, UT	Its brief says "50+ years of combined HVAC and plumbing experience" while every Millcreek and service page brief says "over 30 years". Both are left as each brief wrote them. The three Kearns child pages (AC, heating, plumbers) have no copy yet, so those links point at Coming Soon.	Client decides 30 or 50
Millcreek, UT	The Millcreek AC page has no brief yet, so that one link points at Coming Soon. Heating and Plumbers are built.	Client supplies Millcreek AC copy
Mini Splits	Mitsubishi Electric and Daikin show as logos; Fujitsu and LG stay as names because no usable file was found. Same dealer question as the furnace page.	Client confirms which brands they are a dealer for
Privacy Policy	Built and styled, but the policy wording is a placeholder. The live site serves this text from a consent platform rather than the page, so it could not be pulled and nothing was invented.	Client supplies the wording
Salt Lake City, UT Plumber	The Whole Home Water Filtration tile has nowhere to point: there is no water filtration page in the build and no brief for one. It goes to Coming Soon like the other unbuilt services.	Client supplies water filtration copy
Terms and Conditions	Built and styled, but the policy wording is a placeholder. The live site serves this text from a consent platform rather than the page, so it could not be pulled and nothing was invented.	Client supplies the wording

Running it

No build step and nothing to install. Open HTMLs/home-page.html in a browser, or serve the folder: `cd HTMLs && python3 -m http.server 8000`. To deploy, point a static host at HTMLs/. vercel.json is already set up: clean URLs, so /plumber serves plumber.html, and the root serves the home page.

There is deliberately no index.html. The home page is home-page.html, named for what it is. Every link between pages is relative, so keep the file names as they are.

The header and the footer are identical on all 114 pages. If you are rebuilding this in WordPress, that is the piece to carry over first: header and footer are one shared layout, and each page supplies only its own sections.

Which file to change, and for what

Every page here is three kinds of file working together. Nothing is compiled or built: what you open is what runs in the browser.

Kind	What it holds	Where it is	What changing it does
HTML	The words, and the order they sit in	One file per page, named after the page: `millcreek-ut.html`. There are 114 of them.	Change one and you change what that one page says, or add and remove a section on it. Nothing else is affected.
CSS	How all of it looks	Four files in `css/`. They load in a set order and the last one to mention something wins.	Change one and the look changes on every page at once: color, type size, spacing, what happens when the pointer is over a tile.
JavaScript	What responds and what moves	One file, `js/sunny-engine.js`.	Change it and behavior changes: the phone menu opening, a question expanding, the sliding gallery. Every page still reads with this switched off.

The four stylesheets, in the order they load

File	What is in it
`sunny-engine.css`	The base. The reset, the brand colors and fonts, the header and the footer. The only one all 114 pages load, including the four mirrored ad pages.
`sunny-landing.css`	The landing page sections.
`sunny-hub.css`	The service and city page sections: heroes, tile grids, ticked lists, numbered steps, the questions block, the call band.
`sunny-home.css`	Loads last, so it wins any disagreement. Every change made in this round lives in here. If something looks different from what the other three would do, this is why. Read this one first.

Three things load from outside

The pages pull GSAP, ScrollTrigger and Lenis from a public address rather than shipping copies. GSAP and ScrollTrigger drive the sliding galleries and the counters. Lenis smooths the scroll wheel. If the client's host blocks outside scripts, nothing breaks: the pages read and every link works, you lose the smoothing and the counters sit at their final number. The contact page also embeds a Google map.

If this is going into WordPress

The header and the footer are identical on all 114 pages, so they become one shared layout and each page supplies only its own middle. The sections in that middle repeat too: hero, tile grid, ticked list, numbered steps, questions, call band. The markup for each is the same everywhere it appears, so a handful of reusable blocks covers the whole site. Keep the file names as they are; every link between pages is relative.

The pages we added that are not on the live site yet

21 pages. Everything else in this package matches a page the client already has.

Two of these need a word of explanation

The blog index is `blog.html`. It is the one page that lists the articles, each as a card that links through to the article itself. It holds no article wording of its own. Publish a fourteenth post and you add a card here as well as the new page. One card is set wide and runs across the top; keep the rest at a multiple of three so no row is left half empty.

The blog template is `blog-template.html`. It is not a page and must not be published. It is a copy of a finished article with every moving part labeled: 33 notes that begin SWAP for what changes from one post to the next, and 3 that begin KEEP for what must not be touched. To add a post, duplicate it, rename it `blog-<the url slug>.html`, and work down the SWAP notes. The 13 articles in this package were all built from it, so a new one will match them.

What changed, most recent first

Date	Area	What changed
November 5, 2026	Published	Everything below is now on the preview link at sunny-home-services.vercel.app. All 114 pages were loaded from it and checked; every one answers. The pages are also served at addresses without a .html ending, so /millcreek-ut reaches the Millcreek page, matching the addresses listed in this log.
November 5, 2026	Two dead stylesheets	sunny-home-theme.css and sunny-v2.css were in the css folder but no page loaded either one. Removed, so what ships is only what runs.
November 4, 2026	No orphans	No heading, paragraph, list item or button now leaves a single word alone on its last line, at any width from 360 to 1440. The last two words of 6,532 text blocks are tied together so they wrap as a pair, and a final word containing a hyphen is held whole. Nothing was reworded: comparing the visible text of every page before and after shows no word changed.
November 4, 2026	Tiles everywhere	Seventy five service grids across fifty pages were still the old cards, squeezed inside the narrow heading rail and running down the page. They are tiles now, across the full column, and every set lands in at most two rows with nothing stranded on the last one. Drain cleaning came down from 1,836px to 962px. Six grids of photographs were lifted out of the rail as well; they keep their pictures.
November 4, 2026	One animation	A card with a photograph and a tile without one now behave identically on hover: the same lift, shadow, blue border and gold bar across the top. They had been lifting by different amounts, and only the tile had the bar.
November 4, 2026	Uniforms	All 30 technician photographs were checked against the rule that the Sunny logo appears on the hat, on the chest and across the back. Twenty five already did. Five did not, all in the same set, and they carried a plain cap and polo or a mark that was not Sunny's. Those five were remade with the real logo referenced, and they appear on 33 pages between them.
November 4, 2026	No fade in	Sections no longer fade in on scroll. Everything is drawn with the page. A side effect worth having: the stylesheet started those elements at zero opacity so the script could animate them in, which meant a visitor with JavaScript blocked saw an almost empty page. Now the page reads either way. The markup keeps its classes so the animation can be switched back on.
November 4, 2026	Mini-splits	The three ductless service cards sat two-up inside the heading rail and spilled onto a second row. They run three across the full column now, and the section came down from 1,506px to 893px. The photographs were kept.
November 4, 2026	Brand logos	The furnace repair and mini-split pages now show manufacturer logos where a correct one could be sourced: Carrier, Lennox, Rheem and Goodman on one, Mitsubishi Electric and Daikin on the other. The remaining brands stay as names on an "and more" line. Sources and licensing are in assets/brands/SOURCES.md.
November 4, 2026	Hover	Tiles, ticked cards and numbered steps now respond to the pointer: a lift, a shadow, a gold bar across the top of a tile, and the Learn More sliding with it. The reveal animation leaves an inline transform on everything it touches, which had been silently cancelling the lift on the original cards across the whole site; that is fixed too. Anyone who has asked their system for less movement gets the color change without the motion.
November 4, 2026	Information tiles	The two card grids that carry information rather than links, on the water heater repair and furnace repair pages, now match the service tiles and run across the full column instead of inside the narrow heading rail.
November 4, 2026	No flat bands	Every band on a service or city page now carries a washed texture. The alternating tone bands were a flat fill with their texture switched off, and 22 bands across 21 pages had no texture at all.
November 4, 2026	Lists and steps	Ticked items read as cards with a gold edge rather than loose lines, so a short item no longer sits beside empty space. Numbered steps run across in one row. On the Salt Lake City plumbing page the service list became linked tiles, so each service reaches its own page; it was prose with no way through. That page lost 600px.
November 4, 2026	Bold	The body font mapped every weight onto one medium file, so bold text rendered no differently from the text around it. The 700 weight was already in assets/fonts and unused; it is now wired to weights 600 and above.
November 4, 2026	Service tiles, round two	The West Jordan plumbing page moved from eight photo cards to the same tiles the city pages use, run across the full column so every service title fits one line. Its eight mismatched illustrations came out; the twelve links inside that copy were kept. That section went from 2,046px to 791px.
November 4, 2026	Checklists	A ticked list inside a heading rail ran as one tall column, so a short item held a whole line and left the rest empty. Two columns now, with a lone last item taking the full width. The sub-headings that follow a list no longer sit straight on top of it, and the line that introduces a list reads as a lead-in rather than body copy.
November 4, 2026	Artwork	Removed the three remaining plumbing illustrations that used a stand-in sun with the wrong cap. Nothing references them now. The corrected fixtures illustration stays in assets/services/ and is not in use.

Date	Area	What changed
November 4, 2026	Service tiles	Replaced the photo service cards on the city pages with compact tiles. A photo per service made those sections three screens tall and forced the same artwork onto unrelated services. Each set now lands in two rows.
November 4, 2026	Artwork	Redrew the plumbing fixtures card. The earlier one had a stand-in sun character with the wrong cap rather than the brand mascot. The gas line, garbage disposal and toilet cards on the plumbing page still have the same problem and are waiting on a decision.
November 4, 2026	Typography	Turned 136 straight apostrophes into curly ones across 22 pages, which had been mixed with 1,630 curly ones, and closed three stray spaces before a comma or a period. No wording changed. The four mirrored pages were left untouched so they still match the live site.
November 4, 2026	Millcreek and Kearns	Built four service-area pages from the approved briefs: the Millcreek hub, Millcreek heating, Millcreek plumbers and the Kearns hub. Both cities added to the grids on the home page and the service area page.
November 4, 2026	Phones	Raised every tap target to 44px across all pages: menu button, header and footer links, breadcrumbs, service area chips, buttons, ZIP titles, form submits and card links. Fixed a checklist tick that sat level with the middle of a wrapped line instead of its first line.
November 4, 2026	Page rhythm	Rolled the Kliemann-style layout across the service pages: a sticky heading rail beside the text, alternating tinted bands, and full-bleed photo splits, so a page no longer reads as one centered column all the way down.
November 4, 2026	Housekeeping	Corrected three pages whose developer comment still carried Lehi's production URL. Gave a lone trailing service card the full row.
November 3, 2026	Blog	Built the blog: an index, 13 articles from their briefs, and an annotated template for dev to duplicate. Restructured the article layout into two-column chapters after review.
November 3, 2026	Client notes	Added license number 14291812-5501 and Instagram and Facebook links to the footer of every page. Evened out the service card icons and turned the bulleted copy back into paragraphs on the two pages named.
November 3, 2026	New pages	Built Salt Lake City AC, heating and plumber, plus the whole-house air purifier page, from the supplied briefs.
November 3, 2026	West Jordan	Put West Jordan back where the briefs had it. The live site had the city swapped for the region by a find and replace, which left titles reading "Wasatch Front, UT", a "Wasatch Front Building and Safety Division" that does not exist, and one city's elevation applied to a 120-mile region. Not yet confirmed by the client.
